Verse 1

I put my pen to paper and wonder what to write
It all just seems so bland, this is a useless night
But when I stop to worry, 'f this leads to anything
The nib races the lines and almost starts to sing
It almost starts to sing

Chorus

It's all been said before, but do my words count less
Than those spoken first? We all just do our best
It's all been said before, but do my words count less
Than those spoken first? We all just do our best

Verse 2

I look you in the eye and stammer 'fore I speak
But when I find my voice I find the words I seek
I love you and all that, no Shakespeare, it's just me
And when enough is said you say you'll marry me
You say you'll marry me

Chorus

It's all been done before, but do my deeds count less
Than those that were done first? We all just do our best
It's all been done before, but do my deeds count less
Than those that were done first? We all just do our best

Bridge / Verse 3

We learn to walk and talk, we grow and we dream
Buy houses, marry, love, we care, we cry and we sing
We live, we bear, we mourn and in the end we die
Life is a wondrous circle, it's so much worth our while
So much worth our while
